CABLE VS FIBER

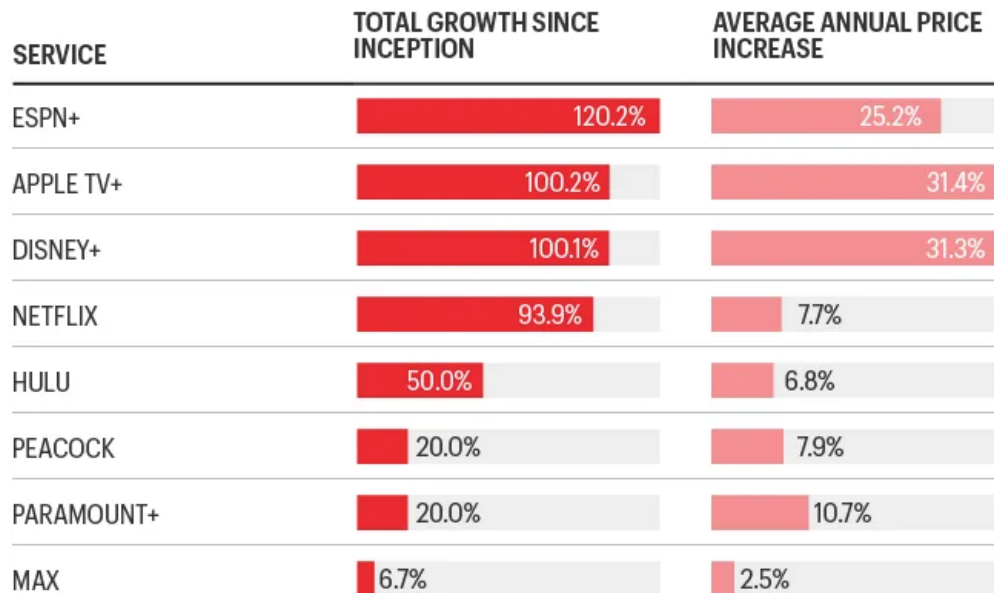

Aspect	Cable Service	Fiber Service
Service	Internet/TV/Phone	Internet/TV/Phone
Speed	Download speeds between 100 megabits per second to 2 gigabit per second	Download speeds between 100 megabits per second to 5 gigabit per second
Reliability	Generally reliable, but service quality may vary during peak usage times.	Highly reliable, as it is less susceptible to weather conditions and interference
Installation	Easy installation, often done by the cable company	Requires professional installation fiber optic done by the fiber company provider
Latency/Lag time	Higher latency compared to fiber, which may affect online gaming and video conferencing	Low latency, ideal for realtime applications like gaming and video calls
Download/Upload Speeds	Faster download speed than upload speeds	Similar speeds for both uploads and downloads
Security	Vulnerable to signal interception due to shared lines	Secure, as data travels through dedicated fiber optic cables
Scalability	Limited scalability, may struggle with increased demand	Highly scalable, can handle more users and data without performance degradation
Overall Recommendation	Suitable for those seeking fast speeds and reliable service	Ideal for users who prioritize speed, reliability, and futureproofing

USEFUL TOOL FOR SELECTING ENTERTAINMENT SERVICES
